Foreign Forces, Including Americans, Guarding Embassies

RUSSIANS REINFORCED

U. S. Legation Attaches Do Not Anticipate Disorders

LONDON, May 17.—(INS)—Chinese Nationalist (Southern) troops are approaching Peking, according to advices from Shanghai today.

Foreign troops (including American) are guarding the foreign embassies and compounds. This is the ordinary guard, which has not been strengthened since the actual advance upon the city began. The bulk of the foreign troops are held at Tien-Tsin.

It is reported that Soviet Russian troops guarding the Mongolian frontier are being reinforced. This has led to speculation as to whether Russian troops may move through Mongolia to join the Southern army, if Peking is actually occupied.

The whereabouts of Marshal Chang Tso Lin, dictator of the Peking Government and generalissimo of the Northern armies, remains unknown. It is reported from Mukden that he has withdrawn from Peking with a large force of picked troops and is on his way to Manchuria.

Attaches of the United States legation in Peking were quoted as saying they did not anticipate any disorders but that preparations were made for any emergency. Foreign residents of the city were advised either to leave, or to remain in their homes.

The United States forces in Tien-Tsin and Peking consist mainly of machines which have been on duty in that country for years. They are under orders to do nothing which might provoke hostility of the Chinese but to protect American lives and properties.

In view of the fact that John Van A. MacMurray, the United States minister, recently concluded a settlement of the "Nanking incident" with the Nationalist government it is felt in circles close to the United States legation that Americans are not apt to be molested if they remain in the background, according to advices from Tien-Tsin.

The Japanese troops guarding the Japanese compound have erected barricades. These troops, as well as all the other foreign contingents, are under orders to do nothing to provoke the wrath of the Chinese.

A number of foreign residents, chiefly British, have left Peking, said a dispatch from that city.

—Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Johnston and family, of Holmesburg, Pa., spent the week-end visiting Dr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Stradling, of Edgely, Pa.

—Mr. and Mrs. George Parkinson, of Wilson street, spent the week-end visiting Mr. and Mrs. Edward Parkinson, of Germantown, Philadelphia.

—Mr. and Mrs. Julius Hilgendorf, of New Buckley street, and Mrs. John Hilgendorf and daughter Violet, of Edgely, were recent guests of friends in Philadelphia.

—John Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Murphy, of Beaver street, is ill at this home, suffering with an attack of measles.

Issue Extra

An extra edition of the Courier was issued last night, giving the verdict in the James trial at Doylestown. No other papers circulating here carried the story of the verdict until those which arrived this morning.

All through the James trial the Courier carried much later stories of the trial than other papers circulating here. This was accomplished through co-operation with the International News Service, which was in constant communication with Doylestown and the Courier.

Odd Glimpse of Hoover

TAKING a peep into the old family album of the Hoover family, there would be found many cozy family groups; the customary old-fashioned "tintypes," and live, interesting pictures of family members and friends at work and at play.

The most that the old ones would bring forth would perhaps be the silly giggle of a very modern flapper and great astonishment at the tremendous amount of clothing worn by the women.

Here is shown one picked at random. After a casual glance and perhaps a tolerant smile at the "old fashioned" group, let's find who they are.

At the left is Theodore J. (Tad) Hoover at the age of 20; Herbert C. Hoover at the age of 16, and, seated, Mary Hoover at the age of 14 when the family lived at Salem, Oregon.

Theodore is now head of the Engineering Department of Stanford University, California, and Herbert, present Secretary of Commerce, is candidate for President.

JAMES, CONVICTED, AWAITS RULING ON MOTION FOR A NEW TRIAL; TO DECIDE APPEAL NEXT MONDAY

Jury Verdict, Charging First Degree in Killing, Carries Penalty of Death — No Defense Made; James Not Called to Stand

DOYLESTOWN, May 17.—After deliberating from 3:15 until 5:40 the jury in the case of Calvin E. James, charged with slaying William Harold Dunstan, Doylestown salesman and ruggist, returned early last evening verdict of first degree murder with recommendations. The verdict carries with it the death penalty.

James, who sat in the courtroom, was unmoved by the verdict and was held back in a chair with his hands cuffed on the table. A few feet from him sat his father, Albert D. James, who was also unshaken by the verdict. Mrs. Dishrow R. Petty, of Upper Darby, a sister to James, wept when the announcement was made. Mrs. Nathan Erwin, of Poole's Corner, mother-in-law of James, was also seen to cry.

The case was given to the jury at 3:15 o'clock and a verdict was announced at 7:40 o'clock, or in a little over four hours. It was stated that the jury had reached a verdict at 5:40 but Court adjourned at 5:30 until 7:30 o'clock, but Judge William J. Ryan, who presided at the trial, returned to the bench to await the verdict. Many of the spectators who had attended the trial during the day were also there.

When Mark McCarthy, of Perkassie, foreman of the jury, announced the death verdict, J. Leslie Killoyne, of Bristol, one of the counsel for James, asked that the jury be polled. This was done by Mulford Callanan, Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court. While the ten men and two women jurors were being polled James listened attentively and kept his eyes on those who had decided his fate.

Attorney Killoyne immediately made a motion for a new trial, and Judge Ryan said he would give counsel four days in which to prepare an appeal. The Court will convene again next Monday, when the argument for a new trial will be heard. Counsel announced that in the meantime James would be called to examine James as to his mental condition.

Sheriff T. Hart Ross and Deputy Sheriff Howard Gwinner were in charge of James while he sat in the courtroom. Daniel Fretz and Edward Jenkins, jailers, walked beside James after Judge Ryan ordered him removed to the County Prison to await sentence. On the way to the prison James turned to Fretz and said: "That's what a fellow gets for fooling with other fellows."

Once inside his cell he removed his coat and said, "Dan, as true as God put a bath in me I am not guilty." A few minutes later he picked up a deck of cards and began to play solitaire.

Mrs. May Avera, of Philadelphia, a sister of Dunstan, when informed of the verdict over the telephone last night said: "I always thought that James killed my brother and was paid to do it."

AIRPLANE BUILDERS LOSE TO CAPITOL VIEW

Keystone Nine Victims of A Slugging Match by Score of 14 to 5

A LONG CLOUT BY GEER

By T. M. Juno

Keystone Aircraft lost their second game of the season here last night when they fell under an avalanche of base blows caused by the Capitol View team of Morrisville. The final score was 14 to 5.

The feature of the game was the home run hit by Geer. It was the longest clout seen on St. Ann's field and dropped a few feet from the canal. Kramer and Luken, who played in Bristol during the war, helped their team by heavy clouting. Sutterly connected for two doubles and a triple. Esterly played best for Keystone.

After Capitol View had been blanked in the first inning, Keystone scored two runs. Arrison went out at first. Esterly was hit by a pitched ball. Egoff walked. Roe sacrificed. Walbrerer singled, scoring Esterly and Egoff. Custer got on but Fine failed to hit.

Capitol scored in the second. Gerr opened with the longest hit on St. Ann's field, a home run. Luken fanned. Sutterly doubled and scored on Cline's double.

Capitol View added a big six to their total in the fourth. Luken opened with a triple. Sutterly made a duplicate of the hit, scoring Luken. Cline was safe on Arrison's wild heave. Sutterly scoring. White went out but Miller singled. Cline crossing the plate. Ryan walked. Harrop whiffed. Gerr was safe on an error. Cline and Ryan scoring. Luken up for the second time, flied to Roe.

Custer's walk, Fine's single and an error filled the bases for Keystone in their half of the fourth. Esterly cleaned the sacks with a long two-base hit.

Six more runs were scored by Capitol View in the fifth. Sutterly's double, Cline's single, White's double, an error, a walk, Harrop's double and Kramer's second double did the damage.

LOUIS TOWNSEND SERIOUSLY HURT IN FALL OFF POLE

Bristol Electrician Believed To Have Touched A "Live" Wire

IN TRENTON HOSPITAL

Injuries Consist of A Broken Leg, Fractured Ribs, and Hurt Internally

A Bristol man was seriously and perhaps fatally injured yesterday afternoon when he fell from a light pole in the yards of the P. R. R. at Morrisville.

The man, Louis V. Townsend, 804 Mansion street, Bristol, is now in St. Francis Hospital, Trenton, N. J. One leg is broken and ribs fractured. It has not as yet been determined whether the skull is fractured or not.

Townsend is employed as an electrician for the P. R. R. and yesterday afternoon was at work repairing an arc light on one of the poles in the railroad yards at Morrisville. It is believed that Townsend touched a "live" wire and was hurled to the ground.

Townsend was rushed to St. Francis Hospital, Trenton, to which institution he was admitted at about 4:30. His wife was notified and went to the hospital.

X-ray photos will be taken today to determine to what extent internal injuries have been inflicted.

Townsend is well known in Bristol. He is a graduate of the Bristol High School and for a number of years has been employed with the P. R. R. His parents reside on Linden street.

Burned Two Weeks Ago; Child Buried Yesterday

Funeral service for little Thomas W. Livesey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Livesey, of Edgely, whose death resulted from severe burns received when the contents of a percolator scalded him two weeks ago, were held yesterday.

The funeral was largely attended at the home of the parents of the lad, and the large number of floral tokens expressed the love the boys' chums bore him. Fellow-pupils at the Edgely school and teachers of the classes sent a handsome tribute of flowers.

The service was in charge of Dr. Jules Provost, of Langhorne.

The child was badly burned about the shoulder and leg at his home when a percolator was upset, and was later taken to a Philadelphia hospital for treatment. He was the son of Thomas W. Livesey, Sr., and Rebecca H. Livesey, and was eight years of age.

Burial was made in Oakland Cemetery.

A GOOD PLACE TO LIVE

Work for and with your home town. Beautify it. Improve it. Make it attractive. Help make it the kind of a town that you really want to live in.

The best advertisement of your business is the town you live in if it's the kind of a town it should be.

Towns get reputations as well as men. Repetition make reputation. Make your town's reputation one that will attract favorable attention. It will thus draw people and where people come there is prosperity.

Help rid Bristol of one eyesore after another. Clean up vacant lots, and plant them in gardens. Make a cluttered up yard a disgrace and an unpainted house a reproach. Cut the weeds, clean the streets and fix the sidewalks. Wash the store windows and discontinue the flaring sale sign. Be fair to your public officials and pay your taxes without grumbling so that they may give the best service possible back to you.

Make public opinion too hot for those who knock, refuse to cooperate for general good and who will not help.

Our town should be one where folks are friendly, where progressiveness is appreciated, where good roads make it accessible, where proper sanitary methods are conducive to healthfulness, where attractiveness is considered an asset, where education fits for the future, where recreations are plentiful for all, where government is efficient and popular, where living conditions are good, where the helping hand is extended to the unfortunate, where employment is plentiful, where investments are sound, where intolerance is unknown, and church spires point the way to Heaven.

That's the kind of a home town we want!

DEADLY

Traffic accidents kill a few thousands of men, women and children annually, causing the setting up of extensive safeguards for the protection of human life.

A citizen is killed by assassins in a foreign land, and diplomatic relations between two nations are strained and the indignation of millions is aroused to the point of violent outbreak.

An epidemic of infantile paralysis breaks out with the resultant loss of life of several hundred children, and the nation organizes every resource to combat the disease.

But germ-carrying insects, which yearly cause the death of millions of human lives and destroy vast quantities of man's food supplies, attract the concern of one or two governmental departments, provoke an occasional "swat the fly" or "clean-up" campaign and disturb not the public's peace of mind. The mosquito and fly are the most destructive enemies of man. They convey to man malaria, sleeping sickness, cholera, typhoid and other deadly diseases. Other insects destroy wheat and cotton crops, murder man's livestock or contaminate food supplies. And the only defense the public makes against his most powerful and destructive enemies is to screen in his house and spray his fields and orchards.

An open mind is all right if you know when to close your mouth.

A hick town is a place where $50,000 can cause a severe case of swell head.

No man falls too low to be saved or to marry a woman who will talk in boarders.

SYNOPSIS

Don Hernandez Vasquez and his beautiful granddaughter Dolores occupy old Vasquez ranch overlooking San Francisco. The city's prosperity that followed the gold rush missed the Vasquez ranch. Vasquez's indolent ways are to blame. Ranch is coveted by Buckleell, political boss. His lawyer, Brandon, and Brandon's nephew, Terry, try to buy the ranch. Vasquez won't sell. Terry falls in love with Dolores. Buckleell plans to oust Vasquez by sending old Spanish land grant. Terry goes to win Vasquez and resumes looking with Dolores. Vasquez refuses Terry's advice and aid. Tells him Dolores is to marry Don Luis. Terry, heartbroken, leaves without seeing Dolores.

"Oh, no!" Dolores stood agast. "Yes, it is—true." For the first time the fine old white head was bowed in grief.

Dolores stroked his hands in sympathy.

"But he will help us—the young Señor—he has promised."

"No, my child, we cannot depend upon him. He is one of their breed, and blood will tell." Vasquez crumpled the heart-breaking message in his hand.

Don Luis opened his eyes on the final note of the love song and looked up for Dolores' applause. To his surprise he was alone.

"Caramba!" he exclaimed in disgust and slamming down the guitar marched grudgingly out to the patio.

"Ah, my boy," called old Vasquez tremblingly, "we have had bad news; could you take a message to town for me?"

"I am sorry, but—unfortunately I have an engagement that makes me ride in the opposite direction." Don Luis tried to show a regret that he did not feel. It was his nature to be happy—when he could do what pleased him, and other people's sorrows or the role of messenger boy had no place in his schedule of a well spent day.

Dolores' cheeks crimsoned at Don Luis' reply and she only nodded stiffly when he bade her "adios."

As soon as he was out of sight she turned impulsively to her Grandfather.

"You see—his blood has told a cowardly tale! The young Señor will help us—I know he will!"

But the old man was just about completely broken in spirit and body. He barely remembered having asked Don Luis to do him a favor and had no recollection at all of his answer.

Dolores summoned the servant and with difficulty they assisted Vasquez inside and made him comfortable for the night.

"Don't worry tonight, dear," encouraged Dolores, soothing his tired forehead. "Let us see what the morrow brings."

"Go to sleep, Grandfather dear—go to sleep—go to sleep," she coaxed and stroked his head with her free hand until his relaxed condition told her that he was asleep.

Tip-toeing from the room Dolores stood alone in the familiar hallway and, leaning against the wall, let her tears stream down her cheeks. They were going to be put out of the Rancho! The old surroundings were very dear to her but they meant infinitely more to her Grandfather and she felt he would not be able to stand the ordeal of a compulsory departure. And even if he could weather the strain where would they go? Dolores knew that something must be done before the morrow and she was the only one to try and find a way out of the trouble.

In the midst of her great need and dilemma she thought of Terry and determined to go to him, that very night while her grandfather slept, in blissful ignorance of her plans.

CHAPTER VII

The Poodle Dog

"May the saints preserve me for a blatherin' fool!" fumed Terry on his way back to Frisco after that thankless trip of warning to Vasquez.

When a man plans to celebrate his disillusion in a woman there is usually nothing lacking. This was true with Terry. He had been so sure of seeing love in Dolores' eyes—love for him—that it was a shock to discover her betrothal to another man.

If she could be so perfidious there was no use in remaining decent for any woman, he reasoned. They were probably all flirts or worse, and he would celebrate the discovery by learning a few tricks from some of them who were credited with being skilled in their trade.

All the way back to his club he took malicious delight in mapping out an elaborate celebration for the evening. After arranging the personnel of his party he decided they would start out at The Poodle Dog and hit every place, both famous and infamous, along the Cocktail Route before morning.

By eight o'clock he was in evening clothes and his white bow tie had been pulled into such a hard knot that it would have to be cut off before he could retire with any comfort. In short, Terry was mad and had a grudge against everyone and everything.

An open cab landed him on a certain street at No. 629, and the mistress of the establishment agreeably provided three young women to help Terry celebrate. He was relieved to find them as unlike Dolores, the cause of his spree, as is possible for women to be. Boisterously piling into his waiting carriage, they proceeded to make merry with an exuberance of gaiety that indicated a round or so of drinks before leaving the house.

Terry had reserved a large room on the second floor of the Poodle Dog, and when they drove up to the courtyard entrance he was informed that some of his other guests had arrived. With considerable hilarity on the part of the girls they passed noisily through the hall, past the big open doorway leading into the enormous room and on up the heavily carpeted stairs to room No. 10, at the head.

Their entrance was greeted with shouts of welcome from several of Terry's men friends and the girls they had brought along.

It was the kind of a party where introductions are waived. Everyone immediately proceeded to become more intimately acquainted. A tub full of ice champagne bottles had already begun to pop. The evening was well under way.

"How does it come about we get a chance to enjoy a swell splash like this?" one of the girls inquired loudly.

"It's Terry's party—make him tell you," advised someone else.

"Going to get married, Terry?" taunted another, "and want a last grand look around first?"

"No, I'm not going to get married—that's it—I thought I was, but I'm not. I was in love with a Spanish princess, but she preferred a man from her own country."

A volley of endearments came his way, but Terry could not be cheered.

After an hour everyone appeared to be in high spirits except the gloomy host. His anticipation had been too great. He was tired, but not a part of the fun. An empty champagne glass held tight, he eyed there was only one thing that interested him.

Beckoning a waiter, he had it refilled and as quickly drained it down to the last drop in the long hollow stem. A slight exhilaration recalled the duties of a host, and, crossing to the big, elaborately spread table, he waved his arms about while giving rather stammering orders to "Serve some—soon!"

From a tray of cocktails that had previously been picked up, he picked up the contents. One of the girls went to the piano and played a lively tune that lured others to the door for dancing, but Terry turned his back on them and, facing the wall, took into a despondent attitude. "And I really loved her!" he mourned to himself.

One friend who knew him for what he really was came over. "Cheer up, Terry," he said, slapping him on the knee. "What's one Spanish princess more or less in a live town like this?"

"Let up—will you?" Terry shook his head and turned away.

The friend's laugh attracted a girl standing near by, and she stepped forward to sit on Terry's lap. "Listen, kid; forget that foreigner. You got us, haven't you?" She put both arms around his neck and tried to nestle her head on his shoulder.

State News

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., May 17—(INS)—Grover C. Ladner, president of the Conservation Council of Pennsylvania, was expected today to challenge the arguments presented by Samuel S. Lewis, state treasurer, against the proposed $25,000,000 forestry bond issue. Ladner was scheduled to address the council which is holding its annual meeting here today.

Lewis in a recent address in Harrisburg asserted that there are but 1,500,000 acres available for state purchase in Pennsylvania. Ladner contended that there are at least 6,000,000 acres which the state should own.

Ladner emphasized the act of 1925 which specified that not more than $100 in bonds could be issued each year which would spread it over a ten year period. He also pointed to a provision which specifies that the money can be used for forestry purchase only and said that would take care of possible exhaustion of available land.

The Lewis contention that the state Game Commission has $200,000 available each year for the purchase of forest land also was attacked. Ladner asserted that the commission cannot purchase forest land exclusively as a majority of the hunters want it to buy land suitable for the hunting of small game.

HARRISBURG, May 17—(INS)—The Public Service Commission was scheduled to hold a number of hearings late this afternoon.

Among the arguments to be heard were those of Michael N. Halkowicz, et al. against the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Lehigh Valley Railroad, alleging that crossings over tracks of these companies at Shamokin and Mount Carmel are in a dangerous condition and asking that the crossings be abolished.

The commission was also to hear the application of the Pennsylvania-Ohio Coach Lines Company for approval to operate buses in the city of New Castle. The application of the New Castle Electric Street Railway Company for approval to abandon its Grant Street and Park lines was also to be heard.

YORK, Pa., May 17—(INS)—Between 800 and 1,000 delegates were here today for the opening of the convention of the thirty-fourth district of Rotary International. The convention will close tomorrow night.

Local Rotarians have established welcoming headquarters at the Yorktown Hotel. Business sessions will be held this afternoon and the annual banquet will be held in the evening. The district comprises Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

HARRISBURG, May 17—(INS)—Two scientists today planned to begin their journey to the wilds of northern Labrador where they will spend several months in an effort to obtain specimens of bird and animal life of the region.

The men composing the party are Dr. George M. Sutton, state ornithologist; John B. Semple, of Sewickly; W. R. Clyde Todd, curator of birds at the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, and W. Kenneth Douth, of the University of Pittsburgh.

SHORT AND SWEET

Christmas as celebrated today, has drifted away from the deeper meaning of the Birth of Christ. To be sure, thoughts turn more outward than inward; hearts overflow for the children; memories go back to the old fireside; sympathies go out to the "neighbor home" recently invaded by death.

There is good fellowship, but not an equal amount of genuine good will; there is a deluge of friendly greeting, but insufficient amendment of indifferent conduct; there is much superficial amiability, but not enough true peace on earth.

The Christmas spirit should be the peace spirit—peace in the heart, peace in the home, and "peace on earth." Christmas peace brings Christmas joy!

LANGHORNE SPEEDWAY WILL OPEN SATURDAY

With the race scheduled for Saturday, May 19th, at the Langhorne Speedway, the auto racing season is officially opened. This meet will be under the direction of the American Automobile Association and will bring together some of the fastest cars and recognized and unrecognized champions of the dirt track.

Great interest is being manifested in this coming event and from advance information given by John Armstrong, of the Automobile Club of Philadelphia representing the A. A. A., this promises to be one of the most successful meets in the East.

Officials of the track have been hopeful of securing the entry of Ray Keech, the Langhorne Demon, who recently broke the world's record on Daytona Beach, Fla.

Entries have already been received from many of the leading race track luminaries who will vie for the big purses that are being offered.

The program for the opening meet includes a one mile trial which will be run in heats, a five mile race for the six fastest drivers in the time trials, another five mile race for the other competitors in the time trials and then a ten mile championship race.

The track will be faster than it was when Fred Winnall broke the track record with the fast time of 38 4-5 seconds for the mile. Mr. Armstrong predicts that all records for dirt track racing will be shattered in this race, and the only limit will be the ability of the racers to keep their car on the track.

GOITRE NOT A DISEASE

Milwaukee Doctor Makes Remarkable Discovery

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—It has been brought to light by scientific research that goitre is not a disease and is not to be treated as such. Dr. A. A. Rock, Dept. 762, Box 737, Milwaukee, Wis., a prominent goitre specialist for over 24 years, has perfected a different method of treatment for his patients that has proved remarkably successful. This same method is now being used for a home treatment of goitre cases all over the country with astonishing results. The Doctor states that goitre is a condition which grows worse with neglect and recommends immediate attention no matter how small the growth may appear. He strongly opposes needless operations. Dr. Rock is the author of a book that tells in a simple way about treating goitre at home. He has published this book at his own expense and will send a copy free to anyone interested. ### OLD FRIENDS

Alone in the deepening twilight When the stars begin to glow, My memory brings back the faces Of the friends I used to know.

Of friends whose treasured presence Was lost when life said "Part," Of friends whose merry laughter Was stilled by Death's dread dart.

But when the dreary day is gone, And sadness grips my breast, My heart finds peace and solace In friends now laid to rest.

—JOHN E. BARRETT.

James, Convicted, Awaits Ruling on Motion for New Trial; To Decide Monday

(Continued from Page One) A short time aroused general surprise, inasmuch as counsel for James had offered no testimony in defense. Every single bit of evidence which was put before the jury was offered by the prosecution.

It appeared as though James didn't have a leg to stand upon; his confession to the murder made to State police admitted, read in open court and admitted into evidence; one witness after another had placed him as being the last person seen with the murdered man; it was proved that he had guided the troopers to the muddy barge canal fifteen miles north of here out of which the body of the slain man was taken from the slime and ooze of the bottom.

Lastly—as a final grand gesture on the part of the prosecution—the man whom James first had accused of killing Dunstan, Gustave Schaeffer, a Philadelphia garage owner and alleged bootlegger, took the witness stand and swore he had not been near James on the night of the murder and, further, presented evidence which made a complete alibi.

It had been expected that the defendant at least would take the witness stand in his defense and the spectators in the crowded courtroom braced in astonishment when J. Leslie Kilcoyne, of counsel for the accused, announced that the defense would offer no testimony. Later the reason for withholding James' version was learned from William H. Satterthwaite, associate defense attorney.

"We tried for hours last night to get James into a sufficiently calm state of mind so that he could answer questions coherently," Satterthwaite said. "Then we tried again during the noon recess today. We found his nerves had gone absolutely, and that he rambled all over the place."

"We knew it would be worse than useless to place him on the stand, and we had nothing else to offer. The man looked calm enough, sitting in the courtroom, but he hardly knows what is going on, so unnerved has he become."

The prosecution rested its case at 11:35 a. m., after which Judge Ryan called a two-hour noon recess. In presenting its mass of evidence, the Commonwealth had called twenty-nine witnesses, nearly all of whom had been recalled to the stand at least once and some of them two and three times.

Mrs. Sadie C. Griffith, who lived in the same house in Upper Darby in which James had resided since the estrangement with his wife here two years ago, was called by Mr. Eastburn, but she did not respond. Mrs. Griffith is said to have gone riding in the murder car with James the day following the murder.

Mr. Eastburn did not signify why he had called the woman or what he hoped to prove by her. Another action that went unexplained was the calling of A. R. Atkinson, Doylestown constable, who testified merely that he had held a subpoena for Mrs. Griffith, but had been unable to serve it, although he had searched for her for three days.

In his address to the jury, District Attorney Eastburn said that, although James had made two confessions, one contradicting the other, he could be found guilty of murder in the first degree on either of them.

In the first confession, signed April 13, James said he had been present when Dunstan was killed, but that Schaeffer had fired the fatal shot. In the second confession, made two days after, he said that he alone had committed the murder.

Kilcoyne opened the final pleas of the defense and spoke for 12 minutes. He spent most of this time casting inferences upon the methods of State police in obtaining the confessions from James. The effect of this was marred, however, when Judge Ryan in his charge to the jury remarked there had been no iota of evidence to show police methods were anything but proper.

William H. Satterthwaite, associate defense counsel, kept referring to the attorney James as "this poor little bootlegger." He pleaded with the jury not to let sympathy sway them in their deliberations and to give "this poor little bootlegger" the benefit of every reasonable doubt.
